The work of the division includes:

1. Inspection of plants and making of recommendations to plant owners, looking to adequate protection of property and of work in process of manufacture for the Navy Department.

2. Special investigations of reports and allegations affecting plants, their employees, progress of Navy Department contracts, usually made at request of Bureaus.
3. Organizing of employees of plants as informants, for discovery of sabotage, attempts to delay contracts, labor disturbances, etc.

4. Investigation of strikes and threatened strikes for the information of Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Bureaus, but frequently it has been possible for representatives of this Division to disabuse minds of labor leaders and settle difficulties.

The most dangerous element disclosed by plant investigations is the rampant propaganda of the I.W.W. unions, Bolshevik, etc., encouraged and doubtless financed by the enemy.

Nearly all of the difficulties experienced with the Navy contracts may be traced directly to one form or another of labor trouble. Hence, this Division, or rather some of its enterprising representatives, have taken some steps toward protecting Navy plants against adverse propaganda and to counteract the effect of damaging influences by addressing employees of plants, display of posters, etc.

A number of miscellaneous duties include:

(a) Transmittal of trade information of interest to Bureaus and other Departments of the Government.

DIVISION VII

INTELLIGENCE SERVICE IN MEXICO,
CENTRAL AMERICA, COLOMBIA, VENEZUELA,
CUBA, PORTO RICO, SANTO DOMINGO, HAITI,
DOMINICAN REPUBLIC, CURACAO.

The work of this Section consists in organizing, directing, and handling the Naval Intelligence service in the Countries above mentioned.

The intelligence work of each organization consists principally in obtaining and transmitting to the Office of Naval Intelligence all information pertaining to the sea coasts, shipping, submarine bases, wireless stations, and all that is significant and relating to the conduct of the present War with Germany. This includes, necessarily, the investigation of Germans or pro-Germans and their activities, as well as the activities of anti-Americans; and,
incidentally, the investigation of pro-German propaganda, matters of interest to the War Trade Board, and political matters of interest to the State Department.
In fact, the agents of O.N.I. in these regions investigate and report all details of any kind whatsoever of interest during the War, in so far as such detailed investigations do not conflict in any way with the duties directly concerned with Naval affairs.

In addition, all agents have been instructed to report to this office, matters that may be of interest in future relations of any kind in which the United States may become involved. This information includes reports sent on loyal Americans, influential native citizens, the personnel of all revolutionary movements, etc., all of which reports are recorded in indexes kept on file in Section A-7.
The work of these Sections comprises:

1. Attending to the correspondence and cables to and from Attaches.

2. Reports from Attaches.
   These reports may be classified broadly as covering the following subjects:
   (a) Suspects.
   (b) Enemy Trade - Shipping, etc.
   (c) Propaganda.
   (d) Social, political and economical conditions.
   (e) Suspects are first carded in these Sections, and the names then forwarded to Section A-5, and to Section A-4, and finally to Section A Bulletin and the filing room.

(b) Matters concerning the Enemy Trading List and Foreign Commerce generally, are sent to Section A-4.
(c) All information concerning propaganda is communicated to the Committee on Public Information.
(d) Reports on political and economical conditions are disseminated to the various Government Departments or Bureaus, to whom the matters may be of interest. All information of a permanent or technical character received from the Attachés is forwarded to Section D for dissemination; all information of a temporary character to Section O.

In addition to the foregoing, it is part of the work of these Sections to procure for the Attachés the necessary assistants for their offices. This includes Officers to act as Assistant Attachés, agents for work in the field and clerical help for their office force. All assistants and agents before leaving are given a course of instruction comprising information relating to the country to which they are to be sent, and in the various duties which they will have to perform.

DIVISION X
INTELLIGENCE SERVICE IN THE FAR EAST.

Division A-10 has supervision of the intelligence service in the Far East. The Naval Attachés at Tokyo and Peking and their organizations come under it. Information which might be of use to the Attachés in the Orient is forwarded to them by this Division and requests for information on matters of special interest arising in the Far East are directed by this Division. It disseminates or acts upon information obtained from the Far East, or transmits it to such other Division as may have jurisdiction, except as to those formal reports from the Naval Attachés which are handled by Section D. The Aides for Information at Guam and Samoa are likewise under this Division, as will be also the Aid for Information at Manila, when designated. Much information of value relative to Far Eastern matters is also obtained from the Aid for Information at Honolulu and the various agencies of the Office of Naval Intelligence along the Pacific Coast.

Division A-10 furthermore endeavors to keep itself advised, in so far as to do so does not conflict with the work being carried on by the Department of Justice and the Military Intelligence Branch of the General Staff, of the trend of Oriental activities and propaganda in this country, and of such undertakings and developments within the United States as may affect the Far East. Because of the opportunity which the collapse of Russia has afforded to German agents to gain access to the United States by way of Siberia, this Division has instructed the Attachés in China and Japan to devote special efforts to obtaining information regarding any suspects who may attempt to take passage from the Orient to the United States. The following is a summary of the principal matters upon which Division A-10 seeks to keep itself informed:

1. As to German activities and evidences of German intrigue and propaganda in the Far East.
2. As to German spies or agents, whether of German nationality or otherwise, operating in the Far East, or sailing or attempting to sail from Far Eastern ports.
3. As to suspicious ships, or the presence of mines in Far Eastern Waters.
4. As to suspicious shipments that might be destined for the enemy.
5. As to anti-Allied propaganda in the Far East, emanating from any source.
6. As to political changes or coming social disturbances in Far Eastern countries.
7. As to the various naval armaments being maintained in the Far East.
8. As to naval bases and naval operations in the Far East.
9. As to the possible location by the enemy of raider bases in the Far East and the whereabouts of enemy raiders.
This division is charged in general with the chemical, physical and photographic examination of mail, printed matter, etc., for the detection of secret writing; and collects, collates, and compiles information on the following subjects:

1. METHODS OF TRANSMITTING INFORMATION AND THEIR DETECTION.

Radio - unauthorized sets and suspicious messages.

Agents - Method of operating - questionnaires, etc.

Falsification of Documents - such as passports, seals, etc.

Organization of the German Intelligence System - In general, any and all data and material pertaining to General Intelligence work.

Suspects - Methods of Identification - Photographs, fingerprint, description and record of suspects, enemy aliens, and deserters for the O.N.I.

Record and Identification Cards.
Photography - of messages, ships, ports, sailors, soldiers, agents, and suspects.

Examination, inspection and search - of mails, personal effects, suspects, steamships, etc. In fact, any and all scientific and technical material or data concerning the gathering and transmitting of secret intelligence.

B SECTION TRANSMITTING

This Section handles all despatches (cables, telegrams or radiograms) coming to this Office, and is responsible for their reaching the proper Section or Sections as soon as possible. The translation sent by Communications is paraphrased and any references are looked up and added as footnotes, so that the despatch which reaches the Officer who is to act on it contains a complete resume of all despatches, both incoming and outgoing, bearing on the subject.

All outgoing despatches are written up in their proper form for despatching. References are checked up or added, if necessary. Each despatch is given a time number and, in some cases, a serial number as well.

A complete file is kept of all despatches, both incoming and outgoing, arranged chronologically and according to the locality of the addressee or addressee.

A complete log is kept of all despatches, both incoming and outgoing, which shows at a glance all the despatches received or sent on any day.

Instruction in the use of codes and ciphers is given to Officers, Agents and others whose duties require a knowledge of the subject, and it is the duty of this Section to arrange for codes to be used by the Naval Attachés, Branch Offices, Aides for Information, Agents, etc. to secure the best possible means, through the Code and Signal Section, of communicating with all Naval Intelligence Representatives.

There is an Officer on watch in this Section every night whose duty it is not only to look after despatches, but also to take care of any other important matters which may come up.

All secret mail, both incoming and outgoing,
is handled by this Section.

DIVISION I
COLLATING

The principal subjects assigned this division for collating, disseminating and filing are the following:

1. Ports of the world and data concerning them that may be of interest to the Naval Service as well as facilities for repairs, availability of fuel and supplies in general.

2. War resources of the various countries and their naval and military activities.

3. International affairs.
5. Commerce and Trade.
6. General data concerning the progress of the European war.

In addition to reports on the above subjects, many varied and miscellaneous reports of temporary or permanent interest are received. Such reports are carefully reviewed and magazines, both foreign and local are examined and articles of value are clipped or copied. Information of interest is disseminated immediately; data referring particularly to merchant shipping, and losses incident to the war is disseminated daily, while matters of less value, but of possible interest to the service, are compiled and issued each two weeks.

The section is frequently called upon for information on many and various subjects, and reports are solicited on any subject that in the opinion of the informant are of possible interest to anyone in the Naval Service.

"C" SECTION
DIVISION II
INFORMATION ON ALL NAVIES OPERATIONS
COLLATIONS ON STRATEGICAL SUBJECTS
RECORDS OF NAVAL OFFICERS

Division II collates and records all obtainable information concerning the navies of all countries, naval operations, strategy, and records of foreign officers.

This Division then disseminates to the proper Bureaus and Offices the information thus collated and digested, and transmits to Section "D", to be deposited in the archives, all such information as may be of a permanent or historical value. Matters of temporary importance, such as the movements of ships, reports on current construction, etc., are kept from day to day, carded in such a way as to be readily accessible.

---19---

In furtherance of the work of this Division, it is important that all reports, rumors, and intelligence items of every description be promptly forwarded, whenever they concern Naval or Naval affairs, American or Foreign.

---COO---

"OF SECTION DIVISION III MERCANTILE COLLABORATIONS"

This division collates and disseminates various information relating to the Mercantile Marine of the World. It includes all matters pertaining to:

1. Tonnage under construction, constructed, and destroyed by enemy submarines and natural elements.
2. Shipbuilding facilities all over the world.
5. New marine machinery, engineering, equipment and fittings for merchant vessels.

A great deal of this information is obtained from reports from Naval Attachés, Consuls, Newspapers, Clippings, Magazines and Books.

---COO---

This division is in general charged with:
1. Registration, carding, and filing of all reports on naval and military material, personnel and operations.
2. Receiving and answering all requests for information relative to naval and military material, personnel or operations.
3. The censorship of manuscripts submitted by members of the naval service for scrutiny in accordance with the Naval Regulations.
4. The printing of Naval Intelligence Publications.

This division registers, cards and files all reports on Naval and Military material, personnel, and operations. The original of Attaché’s reports is placed in D Files; duplicate sent Office of Naval Intelligence; triplicate circulated in O.R.I. in following order: Assistant Director, Section A, Section C, Director and Admiral Kimball.

Copies of all reports relating to subjects under their supervision are sent at once, without request, to Bureaus and Offices of the Navy Department, including General Board, Director of Naval Communications, and Marine Corps, to Naval Academy, Naval War College, Military Information Branch War Department and Army Ordinance.

D-1 receives and answers all requests for information relating to naval and military material, personnel, or operations, obtaining, when necessary, special reports from Attachés or Bureaus, collations or photostats from C Section, and translations from E Section; D-l carries on all correspondence necessary in the premises, both with United States and foreign Attachés, the bureaus and offices of the Department, the Research Council, and various boards and committees, such as the Special Board on Submarine Devices, Naval Consulting Board, etc. Descriptions of inventions submitted for consideration of the Department are usually sent to the Naval Consulting Board for examination, especially those of probable doubtful utility, but where the inventions seem to be very well developed, they may be sent to the Bureau interested.

In addition to the reports of Naval Attachés, D-l files reports from United States flag and commanding officers, the military Governor of San Domingo, the United States Commanding Officer in Haiti, the State Department, Military Intelligence Branch, the National Research Council, and from miscellaneous sources; D-l also files all official documents received in this office from foreign Governments and from Departments and officials of our own Government, as for instance, the Navy Register, cards, charts, maps, and books, and, when needed for use in this office, obtains charts from the Hydrographic office, and maps and books from the Congressional Library. After being registered, books are placed on the book shelves, charts and maps in the chart cases, unless it is desirable to issue them to certain desks for constant reference purposes.

Note the difference between the work of D Section and C Section. D Section permanently files reports; C Section makes collations from reports and keeps certain data regarding ships, organizations of the Navy, Navy personnel, etc., corrected up to date, retaining such compilations and returning the original reports to D Files. D Section does not make collations, but when necessary in order to answer calls for information received from the Department, etc., requests C Section to make such collations as may be necessary. One copy of all collations and of all translations should be filed in D Files for reference purposes.

D-1 censors manuscripts submitted for scrutiny in accordance with Article 1534, Paragraph 3, Navy Regulations, 1913. After examination of manuscript, it is referred to the Bureau in charge of the subject of which the article treats, with the request that the Bureau state whether it objects to the publication of any statements made in the article. If objection is made, such statements are cut out; also, all statements are deleted that are considered objectionable by the Director of Naval Intelligence, or which are forbidden to be published by orders received from Naval Operations. A letter is then prepared for the Secretary's signature authorizing publication as deleted and a brief is prepared for the Director's signature giving Operations a resume of contents. D-1 does not censor photographs, no matter by whom submitted. They should be sent to the Secretary's Naval Aid for examination. D-1 does not censor articles by any one not under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy; such articles should be sent to the Publicity Committee. D-1 does not censor letters, cables or suspicious material, which should be referred to A-4.

D-1 is in charge of the printing of O.N.I. Publications.

D-1 has nothing to do with espionage, which comes under A Section, or with matters of temporary interest as location of ships, which comes under C Section.
In this connection note that a few subjects which might apparently be considered of temporary interest are really not so, as for instance, location of mine fields, which should be carded under "Coast Defended." Papers relating to War Trade and War Trade Board go to A. Papers relating to Merchant Ships including Lloyd's but excepting Armed Guard Reports, go to C3.

An examination of the classification scheme contained on pages 33 to 49 inclusive of the O.N.I. Publication entitled "Instructions in Regard to Intelligence Duty, 1917," will show the subject matter of reports that should be filed in the D Files.

D-1 does not keep a letter file. All letters written by D-1 are sent to the general files of the office. D-1 only writes letters to transmit or obtain information regarding the subjects carded in its files.
