

NCIS HONORS INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

About NCIS

Within the Department of the Navy, the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) is the civilian federal law enforcement agency uniquely responsible for investigating felony crime, preventing terrorism, and protecting secrets for the Navy and Marine Corps.

NCIS will defeat threats from across the foreign intelligence, terrorist and criminal spectrum by conducting operations and investigations ashore, afloat, and in cyberspace to protect and preserve the superiority of the Navy and Marine Corps warfighters.

Comprised of about 2,000 personnel, with more than 1,000 serving as federal Special Agents, NCIS is unique among U.S. military criminal investigative organizations. It is a civilian-ran agency headed by a civilian law enforcement professional who reports directly to the Secretary of the Navy.

Today, NCIS operates in approximately 191 locations in more than 41 countries. Given the organization's worldwide forward presence, NCIS is often the first federal law enforcement agency on the scene when U.S interests overseas are affected.

The agency's global beat, relatively modest force structure, and jurisdictional mosaic- NCIS frequently operates in locations where local, state, or foreign law enforcement agencies have primary jurisdiction- means that partnering with other law enforcement entities is essential. NCIS agents routinely work with local, state, federal, and foreign law enforcement and security agencies to address criminal incidents, identify and mitigate threats to U.S. naval forces and assets, and pursue joint proactive operations.

NCIS Drug Policy

NCIS is firmly committed to a drug-free society and workplace. The unlawful use of drugs by NCIS employees is not tolerated, and those who apply for employment with the NCIS and currently use illegal drugs are considered unsuitable for employment. While we do not condone prior unlawful drug use by applicants, we realize some otherwise qualified applicants may have experimented with illegal drugs at some point in their past. The following policy sets forth criteria for determining whether applicants' prior use of illegal drugs renders them unsuitable for employment. The policy balances the needs of the NCIS to maintain a drug-free workplace and the public integrity necessary to accomplish its law enforcement and counterintelligence mission with the desirability of affording employment opportunities to the broadest segment of society, consistent with those needs.

Criteria

- Applicants who have illegally used drugs while in law enforcement, a prosecutorial position, or a job requiring a U.S. Government security clearance are considered unsuitable for an internship.
- Applicants who have deliberately misrepresented their drug history in their application are considered unsuitable for an internship.
- Applicants who have been involved in the cultivation, manufacture, distribution, processing, or sale of any illegal drug for profit are considered unsuitable for an internship.
- Applicants who have used cannabis and/or anabolic steroids or any derivatives thereof within the past three (3) years are considered unsuitable for an internship within the requisite 3-year time frame. An applicant's experimental use of the above-referenced drugs, which occurred more than three (3) years before the application for an internship, will be considered based on an evaluation of factors.
- Applicants who have used prescription drugs or a legally obtainable substance in a manner for which it was not intended within the past three (3) years before the application for an internship will be considered based on an evaluation of factors.
- Applicants who have illegally used any drug (other than experimental use of cannabis and/or anabolic steroids) within the past three (3) years are considered unsuitable for an internship, absent compelling mitigating circumstances. An applicant's experimental use of drugs other than those referenced above, which occurred more than three years before the application for an internship, will be considered based on an evaluation of factors.
